

BINF6999 - Dates, Deliverables, and Rubrics

My philosophy for this course is that the person grading the assessment should be responsible for the rubric creation. In practice that means that (co-)advisors will be creating a rubric for the quality of research effort and the final research report, while the course instructor is responsible for the project proposal, self reflections, storyboard, and final poster rubrics.

- January 19 information: pdf of email
 - Start and end date
 - Work expectations
 - Environmental health and safety requirements
 - Co-advisor
 - External collaborator requirements
 - Potential project extensions - students do not receive a scholarship for extending their project by the program
- May 15:
 - LLM agreement: context and agreement
 - Take-aways from the current cohort
 - Detailed example created by a student
 - Skills identification: through a conversation, student and advisor(s) identify the transferable skills most relevant for this project or that the student wants to work on - checklist
 - Setting expectations: context and agreement
 - (co-)advisors create the quality of research effort rubric: update this example, or create your own
 - Discuss the project proposal rubric: rubric
- May 29:
 - Project proposal: graded by course instructor
- June 19
 - Mid-semester progress report: see your (updated) quality of research effort rubric, graded by advisor
 - Self-reflection essay: rubric, graded by course instructor
 - (Co-)advisors create a grading rubric for the final research report: example rubric, but read the preamble on how to update it
- July 20:
 - Storyboard: graded by course instructor
- July 27:
 - Poster draft: advisor review and check draft, ensures confidentiality agreements, logos/branding guidelines meet requirements
- July 31:
 - Final poster pdf

- August 06:
 - BIO2 symposium: advisors and 2nd readers encouraged to attend
- August 11:
 - Final report: graded by advisor and second reader
 - Quality of research effort: graded by advisor
 - Final self-reflection essay: graded by course instructor